Mauricio "Shogun" Rua

Mauricio was born in Curitiba, Brazil in 1981. He is currently fighting in the Ultimate Fighting Championship in the Light Heavyweight division.

Rua was the winner of the PRIDE Fighting Championship's 2005 Middleweight Grand Prix and holds notable wins over such fighters as Chuck Liddell, Quinton "Rampage" Jackson, Alistair Overeem, Ricardo Arona and Antonio Rogerio Nogueira. He is currently ranked as the #2 Light Heavyweight fighter in the world by Sherdog.com.

His Martial Arts training began early on; starting with Brazilian Jiu Jitsu and Muay Thai, and he currently trains in wrestling and western boxing.

Rua started his professional career at Vale Tudo events in Brazil, achieving three stopages due to strikes, including a win over future Chute Boxe teammate Evangelista Santos.

He made his Pride debut at the inaugural Pride Bushido 1, a side promotion for lighter weight fighters. In his three Bushido appearances, Rua defeated Akira Shoji, Akihiro Gono, and Yasuhito Namekawa, all by strikes in the first round. With his success, Rua graduated to his debut in a main Pride event at Pride 29, where he faced former professional wrestler Hiromitsu Kanehara. Rua defeated Kanehara by stomp early in the first round. In addition to his great ground game, Rua exhibited noted ability with his kicks and stomps against grounded opponents throughout his career in PRIDE FC. It was this ability that allowed him to defeat his first five opponents in the first round. His Pride career culminated with a ranking of top light heavyweight in the world by Nokout, Sherdog and MMAWeekly.com, as well as the 2005 Middleweight Grand Prix winner.

Rua's success and similar background led to comparisons with his Chute Boxe teammate and Pride Middleweight Champion Wanderlei Silva.

Shogun signed on with the UFC and made his highly anticipated debut with the organization at UFC 76 on September 22, 2007. Coming to the UFC, Mauricio had to make significant changes to adjust himself for the UFC rules (knees and kicks to the head of a downed opponent are not allowed in North American MMA rules).

In UFC 104, Shogun lost a controversial unanimous decision to UFC Light Heavyweight Champion Lyoto Machida. A rematch is scheduled to take place at UFC 113 on May 8, 2010 in Montreal, PQ.

Rua left Chute Boxe in January 2008 and opened his own camp, Universidade da luta, with his brother Murilo in his hometown Curitiba, Brazil.
